HEARD FROM OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

Corporal John T. Butler, Company C, 148th Infantry, has written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Butler of Walnut street, from somewhere in France. His letter follows:
 "Dec. 14, 1918.—We are having cold weather now and lots of rain. The people are so different in this part of the country and everything is so high. Butter is two dollars a pound. They have lots of potatoes and keep them outside with lots of straw over them. We had Thanksgiving services on Sunday."

Company M. P. has written an interesting letter to his mother, Mrs. S. F. Madden of Edgerton. Corporal Madden was a member of Company M and was transferred to the Military company in September. His letter follows:
 "Nov. 29, 1918.—We have been moving most of the time, as you know we have been following the Germans to the Rhine. It is a very nice trip, especially for me, as I am mounted and have a dandy horse, and I find it much easier than walking and carrying a pack."

"We landed in Brest, France, on March 4 and had a three days' trip on the train to Chassagny, near De

Join. Then we got some drilling. We went from there to Belfort and from there down near the Switzerland border, which was some trip, with beautiful scenery. Then we went into the trenches near Donarica and were there until about July 15. Then we loaded up in box cars, which hold about forty men or eight horses. We were on the train nearly three days and we all thought we were going to a rest camp. It sure was rest all right, for it was to Chateau Thierry, where the large battle was on. Here we got 'beaucoup' experience and I may as well own up to it now for I have thought you have mis-trusted something, as I knew the stamp of the censor on my letters would be enough, but I got gas burns on my knees at Fumes on August 4 and was sent to a base hospital at Limoges. The burns did not amount to much and they did not leave scars. I left the hospital Sept. 1 and was sent to a replacement camp at St. Agone and was there about ten days. There I met a lot of our old privates who used to be in our old Company M. "Corp. Willis F. Madden"

APOLLO.

The Winner Players.
 The theatergoers of Janesville will be gratified to learn that the famous Winner players, under the capable management of Mr. John D. Winninger, will play an engagement of seven days at the Apollo theatre, commencing Monday, January 13, presenting the greatest repertoire of royalty releases of comedies and dramas that have ever been offered to the public at popular prices in any section of the United States.

Mr. Winninger's reputation for great productions in past seasons is too well known to need comment, but this season he has even surpassed himself. With his usual foresight, he went to New York in the early part of the season and took his pick of the available material, sparing neither time or money to get the same, as he believes that nothing is too good for his patrons in the middle west. Among the plays to be offered during the engagement are: Sidney Toler's great drama, "Playthings," a story of yesterday, today and tomorrow, and the most famous of comedies of the day, and full of intense situations; "A Dangerous Girl," the thrilling adventures of a woman secret service agent, and particularly appealing at the present time; "When a Woman Loves," the sweetest love story ever told, and another, "Blindness of Virtue," David Belasco's masterpiece; "The Heart of Wexona," a better Indian play, even than "Strongheart"; the comedy success of the season, "Johnny Get Your Gun," full of side-splitting laughter, and "Back Home." What more can you want?

Get 7 Per Cent
for YOUR Money

We are selling $3,600,000 of 7%, 5-year, bond-secured Gold Notes of The Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Company to finance the growth of greater Milwaukee's electric service system.

This "across the counter" sale direct to the public began Dec. 18. To Dec. 31 more than a thousand Milwaukee and Wisconsin investors bought 126 of the $50 Notes, 587 of the $100 Notes, 204 of the $500 Notes and 540 of the $1,000 Notes, for a total of $707,000. Of this two-weeks' total, $645,000 was bought by Milwaukee people.

These investors know they will get their 7% interest, payable May 1 and Nov. 1 each year. They know they will get their money back Nov. 1, 1923.

They know Milwaukee has one of the best-built, best managed electric railway and light systems in the United States. They know it gives as good service as any, and more service for a dollar than any other system in a city of Milwaukee's class. They know it is not over-capitalized, nor extravagantly managed. They know its thousands of employees are well paid, loyal and efficient.

They know The Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Company and Milwaukee Light, Heat & Traction Company, joint guarantors of these Notes, have never during their twenty-two years in business failed to pay on the due date every dollar of their obligations, with agreed interest.

They know this business is growing steadily and must continue growing to supply the Milwaukee district's electric power, light, heat and transportation services.

They know the good faith of the State of Wisconsin, which authorized the issuance and sale of these Notes, and which regulates the earnings of this business, is a further guaranty of their security.

Are YOUR savings earning 7% for you? With equal safety? If not, we shall be glad to sell you some of these Notes. If you have property interests anywhere in greater Milwaukee, an investment in these Notes will pay you the highest interest rate consistent with safety, and will at the same time promote Milwaukee's growth and so enhance the value of all your other holdings in this community.

TERMS: Par for cash; no accrued interest to pay; your Notes start earning 7% interest for you the day you buy them; you draw interest twice a year—May 1 and November 1; you get your purchase money back in cash November 1, 1923.

SALES OFFICE: Securities Department, ground floor, corner Third and Sycamore Streets, PUBLIC SERVICE BUILDING, OPEN 8 A. M. to 9 P. M. Telephone Grand 123; Call "Securities Department."

COMMUNITY PLANNING.

As Mr. G. W. Case, who spoke before the Members' Council of the Chamber of Commerce at the monthly luncheon on Monday, said: "Community planning is the first essential of a city that expects rapid development and it must not be of the haphazard variety, either. Mr. Case is an engineer whose life's work is community planning and at this time he is required of Janesville to plan the future to meet new conditions."

The speaker divided his work in various branches. His definition of community planning being simple and concise, included the formulation of rules for building and arranging of parts of a growing community in order that the arteries of communication may be kept open, that the land be efficiently used and that the owners of property be protected against the improper use of adjacent property.

To accomplish this there must be a complete survey of the entire situation and vacant property, a plan projected for its utilization and a scheme for the development. The survey must include the collection of all facts of the surrounding land and an analysis of the uses it must be put to.

Next comes the plan which divides the territory into districts relative to the steam, electric car lines, the streets, water and sewage system, all of which must be considered separately and in relation to each other. The transportation systems and their developments are important considerations. Even though a vacant lot in a built-up section may cost a trifle more, still it is money saved when the cost of bringing the water and sewage system as well as gas and electricity to an un-settled area is considered.

Mr. Case voiced the sentiment expressed so frequently of late that one of the first and chief essentials to be considered is the schools and their equipment and efficiency. Following School Commissioner Grant's talk at the December meeting of the council, his reiteration of this important feature in city planning and essential development was most timely. Schools are necessary to a growing city and plans coming to a new community to work with families always ask first, what of the schools? They consider this factor more today than they did in the past. Good schools are an asset and Janesville should develop this asset.

Streets are also an important element in city planning and the question whether certain streets will be used for heavy traffic, either local or through, demands a certain sort of construction that is not needed in the residence portion of the city where heavy traffic is not desired. There must be systematic organization of these streets and arrangements for repairs and construction of new ones as needed.

Not in this city planning, as pointed out by Mr. Case, should the question of the recreation parks and playgrounds be neglected. Citizens who remember the struggle it was to establish the playgrounds in the school grounds several years ago, realize now how well they build. Parks, bathing beaches and rest places are important in the development of the city, looking to an increased population as in Janesville.

It was coincident that the Janesville Housing Corporation started the sale of its shares Monday morning to meet just the demands that Mr. Case stated were imperative. In fact, the speaker on Monday paid his compliments to the plans of the local organization and stated that in order to assure its success there must be a concerted effort that should be the work of the combined population.

This zone system is explained in a few words by saying that the factory district should be confined to one area, the residence to another and the business to a third, and that none should encroach upon the other to the detriment of property values and the deterioration of the scheme of the community planning.

There are so many angles to this question of community planning that it is a most interesting and enticing subject to dilate upon. Just now when Janesville is entering upon a new stage in its development, when thousands of families are expected here within a few months, these questions of schools, housing, streets, sewage, garbage disposal and other civic matters must be decided promptly. There can be no serious delay, and with the school matter receiving consideration by the council the next problem is the Housing Corporation's plans, and citizens are urged to do their bit and take the stock offered them that work may be started immediately on this important problem.

A CHANCE FOR TRIAL.

Development of American industries during the years following the war are going to be most important. According to the Wall Street Journal steps have already been taken along this line, as the Journal states: "On April 10, 1918, what was known as the Webb bill became a law of the United States. This act suspends the provisions of the Sherman and Clayton laws so far as exporters are concerned, and leaves them free to combine for the purpose of meeting competition in foreign markets. Exporters may form selling agencies; make agreements in regard to the manufacture and shipment of goods, and other necessary agreements for export combinations without being liable to the penalties of the laws in respect to restraint of trade."

"Thus far the copper producers seem to be the only ones who have taken advantage of the opportunity. They have formed an association for the sale abroad of their surplus production. As in the past two years, the United States exported $12,000,000 worth of goods, these should be room for some after-war business for our lumber, steel, cotton and other commodities, both raw and manufactured."

"In fact, this was the reason for the making of the law. It was meant for an after-war measure. Investigation showed that other countries were building up their foreign trade by such associations, while our business men were handicapped by the anti-trust laws. Before the war, Germany, for instance, had six hundred important combinations that controlled the markets for practically everything produced in the empire."

"Their dyestuff industry was operated as a unit in foreign trade, under the leadership of two groups of producers who worked together under a long-time agreement. The exports of coal and coke amounted to $150,000,000 a year, and half was handled by one selling agency. Two agencies handled all the iron and steel business; while two others, working in closest harmony, controlled the growing trade in electrical equipment. It is needless to ask for further reason for Germany's 92 per cent increase in foreign trade in ten years."

"They had the same struggle held on our domestic markets through effective buying combinations for securing raw materials. They could always buy copper and other commodities here cheaper than the domestic consumers. Unwittingly, our law helped the Germans to beat us, but those restrictions now are removed, and business men have the right to make combinations for export business provided they do nothing in restraint of trade at home. The opportunity should be seized, in order to meet competition of other countries with success."

The meeting of President Wilson with the Pope means more for the entire world than is gained at first glance. Wilson, the citizen, was honored by the visit of the President of the United States. Consequently it was mutual and the results can not help but be felt in years to come.

Until the day when the average American home can have bacon and eggs for breakfast, codfish once a week, buckwheat cakes and country sausage once in a while, and beans on Saturday night, with a nice fat piece of pork in it, at a nominal cost, this country will not resume its full stature of former greatness.

One thing is certain, that while President Wilson has been fed and dined in Paris, London and Rome, he also has had an opportunity of witnessing the devastation that the Huns wrought in Belgium and France, and he will not even pay Germany the honor of leaving calling cards.

Would it not be a joke on the republican party if Governor Wood and Pershing should line up as rivals for the G. O. P. nomination when the national convention meets. This effort to capitalize military greatness may bring about strange complications after all.

Well now the Wisconsin state legislature is in session. The next question is, what will they do? There is plenty of room for improvement over some efforts of previous sessions, but the question arises, will they see their opportunity?

Here is a suggestion, that boats simply sinking those German gunboats all hollow. Why not use them for target practice for our annual naval cruises and give the boys behind the guns some real, genuine fun?

It would be a relief if Turkey, Austria or Bulgaria would say something one of these days to show they were still alive. However much they have said, Germany still holds the calcium light and stage center.

It takes more than zero days to stop the construction of the new unit of the General Motors Corporation, where the famous Sampson tractor is to be manufactured.

Charity begins at home and sprinkling ashes on icy sidewalks is one way of displaying thought for the fellow man.

Editorial Comment Theodore Roosevelt.

Chicago Herald Examiner.
Luster was added to the Roosevelt name by his four sons who have been named after him. Theodore Roosevelt was a man—a man of the type that even this great country produces few.

Milwaukee Sentinel.
An extraordinary personality whose like the country will not see again. His bitterest detractors will hardly stultify their own intelligence by denying that he was a great patriot, and the most arresting and compelling preacher in our time of undiluted, uncompromising, militant Americanism. Theodore Roosevelt did this in the face of a nation in the making great service.

At last requiescat for he strove and struggled for the right as he saw it all his life.

Madison Democrat.
Theodore Roosevelt, dead, is yet a glorious inspiration to Americanism. The spirit of pure patriotism he typified grandly in his own dynamic personality. Always, everywhere, he was the courageous exemplar of the republic which he himself had no small part in making great.

The Wisconsin News.
The sudden death of Theodore Roosevelt drops out of our national life one of its foremost figures. While coming with shocking force in its unexpectedness, it was not without warning in the grave nature of the malady which took him to the hospital several weeks ago.

The Wisconsin News.
A life absolutely filled with life and action. No other could have suited as well the man that lived it.

The Milwaukee Journal.
Theodore Roosevelt died too young, far short of the allotted span. But he had lived one day more than many men live in a life time. He would not complain, and the millions of friends that he leaves may know that his life was such as he would have had it.

The Milwaukee Journal.
Where in history, except perhaps in Charles XII, will you find more activity, action, mental and physical excitement crowded into so few years?

The Milwaukee Journal.
Mr. Roosevelt has lived a full, intense and a useful life. An American people will miss his ceaseless activity and his stimulating thought and utterance. Whatever else may be said of him, he was definite, exact, quiet, he compelled attention. He made men think and think in terms of Americanism.

The Beloit Daily News.
In the passing of Theodore Roosevelt, the United States loses its great apostle of nationalism, its greatest exponent of a strong and virile Americanism.

The Krupp company will not pay a dividend this year, and if the world goes its way, it will never pay another one.

Back to the dry dock. There will be no cup race this year.

While we mourn let us resolve to prove the sincerity of our grief by living up to his high, yet practical, ideal of sound and loyal Americanism.

Not only the United States, but the world, is stunned today at the news of the death of former-President Theodore Roosevelt. It seems impossible that the colonel's virile, energetic personality is stilled in the silence and immobility of the last sleep.

Daily Commonwealth.
He was versatile, vigorous and averse to "paths of ease." He was essentially a man who accomplished things and such men, while they win admiration, also arouse bitter enemies. Col. Roosevelt had both, but today admirers and former enemies join in a well earned tribute of esteem to one of the most illustrious characters in American history.

Chicago Tribune.
Theodore Roosevelt, the plus American, is dead before the age or infirmity could subtract much from the physical energy or anything from the mind of a man who sometimes dominated and during his mature life always influenced American life.

Speakin' o' ole time legal tender, Uncle Niles Turner says he kin remember o' payin' many a coon or skunk hide t' see "The Two Orphans." You might just as well hand some feller a quart o' squirrel whiskey as a little authority.

Conservative Loans

to American Farmers have always been conceded safe investments. First Mortgages on improved and valuable farms today should be securities second to none.

We have loaned money to the Western Farmers, taking mortgages on their broad acres of fertile land for more than a quarter century.

These securities are much sought after by conservative investors. They are recommended as good and have proved to be so. Our experience, our business system and service is offered with every farm mortgage.

Our own money is first invested after careful examination and appraisal of the security offered. These are on sale at all times and are worthy of your attention.

Come to the Big January Clearance Sales

An extraordinary combination of circumstances will make this the greatest bargain-event we have ever held. The welcome coming of peace naturally tended to upset conditions in the wholesale markets. Ever alert to serve you, we have taken full advantage of these conditions and have made special purchases which enable us to offer extraordinary values. Then, too, our own regular stocks of winter goods are large. The influenza epidemic of last fall plus the general effect of the war, retarded business. Our stocks must be reduced and to quickly accomplish that end, we have reduced prices. So this sale offers our own stocks, as well as scores of special purchases, at less than you could have expected to pay this season for merchandise of equal quality.

The Big Sale Begins Thursday, January 9th, and Continues Until Saturday, January 18th, With Every Department In the Store Participating.

The Thirteenth Commandment

By RUPERT HUGHES

At Daphne's left elbow was a large, fat girl whose pen rolled off large, fat letters. She talked all the time about nothing of importance, laughed and giggled and asked questions that would have been impertinent if they had come from anything but a large, fat head.

Her name was Maria Pribik. She was a Bohemian of the second generation; but she was dyed in the wool with New Yorkishness. She was an incessant optimist and kept reminding everybody to "cheer up, girls, the worst might be wiser yet."

Daphne's luck did not last long. The receivers found that the percentage of inquiries following upon the advertising and circulating campaign was hardly paying the postage. People were either too poor to buy books or too busy with the moiten history pouring from the cauldrons of Europe. Yesterday's paper was ancient history enough.

The receivers closed down the business abruptly on a Saturday and instructed the manager to announce to his flock that there would be no more work at present. Daphne's heart stopped. Here she was again, learning again the dreadful significance of "out of a job"—what the theatrical people called "at liberty."

Miss Pribik looked at Daphne and

MUSTEROLE—QUICK RELIEF! NO BLISTER!

It Soothes and Relieves Like a Mustard Plaster Without the Burn or Sting

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with the oil of mustard. It does all the work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster—does it better and does not blister. You do not have to bother with a cloth. You simply rub it on—and usually the pain is gone!

Many doctors and nurses use Musterole and recommend it to their patients. They will gladly tell you what relief it gives from sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bite, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia).

SAYS THIS CURED HIS LUNG TROUBLE

Mr. Morgan passes insurance examinations now, and feels perfectly well.

"In 1908, my lungs became so badly affected I had to give up my work. I coughed all the time and finally had hemorrhages from my lungs and shoulders ached so I could hardly live. Two physicians told me I had consumption and could do no good and advised me to change climate.

"Finally a friend gave me a bottle of Milks Emulsion. It did me so much good that I continued taking it, and in a few months I cured me sound as a dollar.

"My lungs are now as strong as ever. I weigh 147 pounds, which is more than I ever weighed before. I work all the time, can expand my chest six inches and am able to pass lung and insurance examinations without any trouble."—Otto Morgan, 430 West St., Terre Haute, Ind.

It is not claimed that all advanced cases of this kind are curable, nor that any such case is curable. But Milks Emulsion costs nothing so try in any case, and it will restore you to health.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a constructive medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and cathartics. It puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to run-down, nervous people and it has produced amazing results in many cases of asthma, chronic bronchitis and tuberculosis of the lungs. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. It is the best medicine for weak, sickly children. No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if it does not give you the results your money will be promptly refunded. Price 50c and $1.50 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold and guaranteed by J. F. Baker.

PETHEY DINK—PETHEY DIDN'T KNOW HOW SLICK THEY WERE.

But the violence of Gerst's resentment would be a detail. The horror was the mere thought of his touch.

She rose quickly and tried to reach the fire escape. That was the solution—to join the crowd.

But Gerst filled the aisle. She sidled past two tables into the next aisle. He laughed and sidled across to the same.

Adroitly evading his pinners, Miss Pribik led the way out, and Daphne trailed her outside.

Daphne loathed and feared the man already. He stood like a glowering menace in the path ahead of her.

Monday morning at eight Daphne reported for work with the L.A.R. de Luxe Publishing society, pronounced by its own people (who ought to know) "Lar de Luicks."

This firm was engaged in the peculiar Anglo-Saxon business of grazing the censorship as closely as possible. It printed everything that it dared to print under the whimsically Puritanic eye of the law. Toward the authorities it turned, the white side of a banner of culture claiming to put in the hands of the people the noblest works of foreign genius and defying any but an impure mind to find impurity in its classic wares. The other side of the banner was purple and informed the customers by every prudent innuendo that the books were published in their entirety without expurgation. Vice has its hypocritical cant no less than religion.

One day, toward the end of her first week, she was startled to find before her a card bearing the legend "Duane, Thomas." His address was given, and the facts that he had bought the three-quarter morocco Balzac, the half-leather Fielding and Smollett, and the leather Cato's Letters. He had not yet taken the bait for the De Maupassant.

Daphne pondered his card and his taste. She was shaken from her pensive mood by the sudden commotion of all the women. All eyes had seen the minute and the hour hands in conjunction at XII. Names were left off in the middle; pens fell from poised hands.

Daphne found herself alone. She was glad of the quiet and the solitude, while it lasted—which was not long, for Gerst came back unexpectedly early.

His eye met Daphne's. He started toward her, and then, seeing that she glanced away, went on to his desk. He stood there manifestly irresolute a moment. He glanced at Daphne again, at the fire escapes, at the empty room. Then he went to the first of the tables and with labored carelessness inspected the work of the absentee. He drifted along the aisle toward Daphne, throwing her now and then an interrogative smile that filled her with a fierce anxiety.

She knew his reputation. She had seen his vulgar scuffles with some of the girls, had heard his odious words. She was convinced that he was about to pay her the horrible compliment of his attention.

Her heart began to flutter with fear and wrath. She felt that if he spoke to her she would scream; if he put his hand on her shoulder or her chair she would kill him, with a pair of scissors or the knife with which she scraped off blots.

No, she must not kill him. But she would have to strike him on the mouth.

But that meant instant dismissal at the very least. He might smash his fist into her face or her breast or knock her to the floor with the back of his hand. She had seen too much of life recently to cherish longer the pretty myth that the poor are good to the poor. She had seen how shabby women fared with street car conductors and subway guards. She had seen her own prestige dwindle as her clothes lost freshness.

her about the way to quell a man with great difficulty and in all trepidation she parroted her old formula.

"Mr. Gerst, you don't have to flirt with me. I don't expect it, and I don't like it, so please let me go."

He stared at her, trying to understand her amazing foreign language. Then he snickered with amused disbelief, dropped his hands, and stood aside.

Daphne could hardly believe her eyes. The charm had worked the third time! She darted forward to get away before the spell was broken. As she passed him—whether he suddenly changed his mind or had only pretended to acquiesce—he enveloped her in his arms.

She almost swooned in the onset of fear and the suffocation of his embrace. Then she fought him, striking, scratching, writhing. He crowded her against the nearest table and tried to reach her lips across her left elbow.

Her outflung right hand, struck against an inkwell, recognized it as a weapon of a sort, and clutching it, swept it up and emptied it into his face.

His satyric leer vanished in a black splash. His hands went to his drenched eyes. Daphne, released, dropped the inkwell and fled to the locker-room while he stamped about, howling like the blinded Cyclops. Daphne did not stay to taunt him nor to demand her wages. She caught a glimpse of faces at the fire-escape windows, but, hugging her hat and coat, she made good her escape.

She knew what she was escaping from, but not what to.

Dinner Stories

"William," cried the astonished lady, "what on earth are you doing standing before the mirror making those dreadful faces?"

"Well, my dear," replied her husband, "I am receiving a presentation at our club next tonight and as I am not supposed to know anything about it I'm practising a look of intense surprise!"

"Walter," cried the diner, "it says here on the menu 'green bluefish.'"

"Yes, sir. That means fresh—right from the water, sir."

"Nonsense!" said the diner. "You know well enough they do not take bluefish at this season."

The waiter came up and looked at the disputed item.

"Oh, that, sir," he said with an air of enlightenment, "that am hothouse bluefish, sir."

"How is Robert getting on at college?" asked the minister, who was being entertained at dinner.

"Splendidly," said the proud father, who then went on to tell of his son's various social, athletic and scholastic successes, and the minister said it was a fine thing to be college bred. That evening little James, who had been an interested listener, said: "Papa, what did Mr. Brown mean by college bred?"

"Oh, that," said papa, who had been looking over his son's bills, "is a four-year loan!"

INFLUENZA AGAIN IS A SERIOUS MENACE

Epidemic Comes Back and Victims Number Thousands

You Can't Be Too Careful If You Have a Cold—Treat It Promptly With Father John's Medicine

The public should realize the truth concerning the grippe epidemic. It is raging violently and the number of cases reported shows that its victims number thousands. We have lost more people through this disease than during the struggle with Germany.

While we drove it back for a time, it has returned with full vigor and in some places is even worse than during the fall.

If you become weak or run down, you are in danger from the germ which is everywhere present. If you catch cold your danger is even greater because, colds quickly develop into grip or pneumonia.

In this time of danger Father John's Medicine should be kept on hand in every home. The pure food ingredients of this old fashioned medicine build new strength to fight off the disease. It is the logical, safe remedy for colds; it's soothing elements heal the irritated lining of the breathing passages; it's gentle laxative effect drives out impurities; it's strength-giving elements rebuild wasted tissue.

Because of the fact that it is guaranteed absolutely free from alcohol or any dangerous, narcotic drugs in any form whatever, Father John's Medicine may be taken with safety by every member of the family. Mothers especially should watch the health of their children at this time because it is notable that the present grip epidemic is spreading more violently among children than the former epidemic.

Health authorities agree that avoidance of crowds, plenty of fresh air, proper nourishment and rest, all of which combined with a proper tonic to maintain resisting power, are the commonsense methods of fighting off the epidemic.

The danger is one which cannot be overlooked. To guard against it in every way possible is a duty in which everyone must help. Get a bottle of Father John's Medicine today and keep it in the house all the time.

JANESVILLE WILL HAVE FAST QUINTET

Plans Being Completed for Fast Basketball Team for this City. Will Play First Game Soon.

Janesville will soon take its place among the leading basketball centers of the middle west. Plans are now being completed for the formation of a basketball team which will be composed of former stars of the University of Wisconsin and other schools.

No word has been given as yet when the first game will be played but it is hoped that the season within a short time. The team will be as formidable as any that has represented this city in the past and games with the strongest teams in the middle west will be arranged.

The quintet will play all of their games in this city and it is the desire of the new manager to secure the best talent possible. It is not known as yet who will oppose the Janesville team in the opening game, but it is likely that some strong Chicago team will be the first to be seen in action in this city.

Several games for later in the season have already been arranged and it is the desire of the manager to bring such teams as the Chicago Racine and other fast teams to the city. It may be possible also that the Rags of Detroit, claimed to be the best basketball team in the country, will play this city for a series of games later on.

MORRIS MILLER

I've been wondering if recklessness due to the blasting of his romance on the battlefield of France played a part in the recent death of Bobby Baker, famous athlete. Bobby was killed by a fall from his plane while waiting orders to return to America. A member of his squadron wired news of the death to his mother. Baker had gone through innumerable air battles during the war without injury. Last summer, dispatches stated, he met Miss Mimi Scott, Newport, R. I., France, when he and three lost children to a hut in the war zone. The engagement of the girl and the girl was announced later. Then a few weeks ago the girl's grandmother announced that the engagement was broken. No facts concerning the romance or the reasons for terminating it were given. Miss Scott is popular and held in high esteem by her friends, as was Baker.

Few men earned greater fame in sports and few have been more popular than Baker, due partly to the fact that he did much and talked little. He was extremely modest and was disposed to make light of his own brilliant performances on gridiron or ice. His personality was most attractive and he made friends easily and quickly and held them. Baker first earned prominence in football in the fall of 1911, when Princeton defeated Harvard 8 to 6 and Yale 6 to 3. He was a really great back and in the opinion of many ranked with the best of all time. With remarkable speed and striking ability he combined quickness of thought and eye, which made him a hard man to stop at all times, particularly dangerous in a broken field.

One cannot recall Baker without remembering his brilliant, eighty-five yard run for touchdowns against Dartmouth in the fall of 1912 after catching a punt on his own fifteen-yard line, or without remembering that his deadly drop-kicking was responsible for holding Yale to the score of 6 to 6 in 1912 and of 3 to 3 in 1913. In fact Baker was one of the few Princeton football players who played on three teams without suffering a defeat at the hands of the opponent. He was captain of the eleven in 1913 and his team was beaten by
